LIKES PRISON LIFE.

A MAN WHO HAS SPENT FIFTY YEARS IN PENITENTIARIES.

An Indiana Criminal Who Prefers His Cell to Liberty—Strange Life History of an Octogenarian Who Has No Ambition to be Free or to Have Friends.

On a bench in front of the Clark county (Ind.) almshouse on warm, sunny days sits an aged man whose silvery beard is tangled and whose trembling hands and faltering steps tell the story only too plainly that the journey of life is nearly at an end. This is John Hicks, a poor, broken down old sinner, whose only claim to distinction is that he has served fifty years in the penitentiary. He was not a celebrated crook whose cleverness baffled the police and made his name a terror. He was only a humble professional prisoner with neither kith nor kin to worry over his singular choice. No wife ever shared his lonely hours and no prattling children ever climbed upon his knees; no tailor ever worried him with bills for clothing, and he never took the trouble to form a political opinion, because he never had an opportunity to vote.

Not long since a reporter visited the Indiana almshouse, and when he inquired for "Old Man Hicks" he was told that the venerable pauper was in his accustomed place in the yard. He did not seem surprised when the visitor called him by name and made known his mission. His eyes brightened as his thoughts went back to his beloved cell, but it was only for a moment. Then he said calmly and quietly without any apparent regret for the wasted years of his life:

"I suppose you want to hear the story of my life. Everybody does, although I do not see why they should take such an interest in the affairs of an old man they never knew and will never think of again after they leave him. Well," he continued, musingly, fumbling with the ragged edge of his faded coat, "I was born in Montgomery county, Va., eighty-six years ago. My parents were poor and died when I was but a child. I had no brothers or sisters, and I went to live with a neighbor, who taught me the blacksmith trade when he found I would not go to school. My master's name was Neal, and he was fairly good to me, but when I grew up I decided to leave him and come to Indiana. For awhile I drove a stage between Hamilton and Centerville, but I gave it up and secured a place as stage driver for Beard & Scott, between Salem and Livonia.

"One day while waiting for my dinner at the house of a farmer named Brown I saw a pocketbook in a bureau drawer that had been left open. It contained $160, which I at once took possession of. I got three years for this, which I served and went to Washington, Daviess county, where I stole $500 from a man whose name I do not remember. I think it was Thomas, but it was such a long while ago that I am not sure. They gave me seven years for the offense, and after serving six years I was pardoned by Governor Joe Wright.

"When I got out I went to Bedford and worked at my trade until they arrested me for assaulting a woman. I was innocent, but I never took the trouble to deny it and the jury gave me ten years. Five years had been served before it was discovered that I was not guilty, and Governor Willard pardoned me. At Indianapolis I committed a burglary and was given three years. Another burglary at Brookville brought me four years and still another one at Crawfordsville got me four years at the Michigan City penitentiary.

"About this time I thought I would try some other prison, and I went to Louisville, Ills. Another alleged criminal assault was the cause of my serving ten years at Joliet. My term expired and I next fell at Hamilton, O., where I served two years for burglary. Afterward I served in Pennsylvania and Ohio again and then went back to Jeffersonville. By this time I was old and I longed for my cell in the Jeffersonville prison. It was more comfortable than any I had ever occupied, and in fact the prison there is the most humane one in the country. Well, I walked all the way from Columbus to Jeffersonville, and calling upon the late Captain Craig, who was then deputy warden, I asked him to give me a home in the prison, saying I was too old to work and wanted to spend my few remaining days there. He said he could not do so, and I resolved to make him do it.

"Going up to Paoli, in Orange county, I robbed a house and took good care that they should catch me at it. The case came to trial, and after I had told the judge my story he kindly sentenced me to five years. He would have made it more, but he said he thought I could not live longer than that. I thanked him and went to prison. But I was still alive when the sentence expired, and going to the northern part of the state I robbed a man and got a year at Michigan City. Then I came back to Jeffersonville, and the township trustees sent me here before I had a chance to steal anything.

"When I began my prison career I was six feet tall and weighed 200 pounds. I was probably the strongest man in the state. My first sentence in Jeffersonville was served in a little log prison at the corner of Ohio avenue and Market street. I was superintendent of the iron work on the new prison, which was built in 1847, and, if I do say it myself, the job was well done.

"They made me keeper of the big gate on the south side just west of the office. Once, when the gate was open to let a wagon out, fifty desperate convicts made a break for liberty. Snatching an iron bar from the tool chest I planted myself in the passageway and kept them all at bay until the guards arrived and took them in charge.

"No, I don't care for money. Give me a chew of tobacco. Thanks. When you are out this way again come in and see me. Goodby."—Louisville Post.

Mosquitoes That Never Lived.

Some of the good people of Stratford, Conn., decided this year to drain about forty acres of marsh land and had the necessary ditches dug. Afterward some of the ditches were partially filled up and the marsh water stagnated therein. On examination the water was found to be a saturated solution of mosquito larvæ. The local scientists focused their powerful intellects and microscopes upon a specimen of the water and figured it out that the prospective mosquito population had been 20,000,000 to the acre.

As there were forty acres drained, the appalling fact is apparent that 800,000,000 promising members of the mosquito race, who might have done good and telling work upon the Connecticut country boarders this year, were thus cut off before their youth had a chance to flower or even to sprout, or, to come down from metaphor to fact, to crack the shell of the embryotic state. Among other things, this little story teaches us to keep away this summer from undrained marshes.—New York Tribune.

A Potato Vine Imitating the Lemon Trees.

J. W. C. Pogue brought in to Visalia this morning a remarkable freak of nature in the shape of a potato vine upon which was growing potatoes in all stages of development, from the size of a marble to one as large as the average Early Rose. The vine was discovered in Mr. Pogue's lemon grove. The seed planted was of the Early Rose variety, and some of the potatoes will be planted out to see if they will reproduce. When the vine was pulled up a few small potatoes were found at the root, but on the vine there must have been a hundred. The only explanation Mr. Pogue can offer is that the potato must have thought it to be its duty to produce lemons, as is was surrounded by that fruit, and that it made an honest effort in that direction.—Visalia Times.

Where Flies Come From.

If by stealth a man should let in a little light and air—that is a man's idea of cooling a room, to open it wider than the Chicago exposition and let in all the dust and heat and noise and flies and glare the street can pour into it—he is discovered every time. She whose genius had made every room in the house a storage warehouse for night air comes in and wonders "Where all these flies came from?" He, with extravagant gesticulation, doesn't know—at least he says he doesn't, and doesn't care, which is true; what he wants to know is when they are going back again?—Robert J. Burdette in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Latest Horror.

Scientists have built for advertisers, by an arrangement of mirrors, reflecting glasses and lights, a sort of gigantic magic lantern, by which images can be thrown upon the clouds, so that advertisements in letters 100 feet long will be visible over a dozen counties. On the bosom of an advancing cyclone horrified humanity of the future will be able to read in gigantic letters "Use Blank's Chest Protector," "Try Bragem's Pills."—Minneapolis Journal.

The Y. M. C. A. in France.

The cornerstone of the new building of the Paris Young Men's Christian association has been laid with appropriate ceremony at 14 Rue de Trevise. The efforts in promoting the good work have evidently been most successful, and the undertaking is sure to have the good wishes of the community at large.—American Register.

After a long consideration of the matter, the Italian government has decided that 6½ millimeters is the best size for the bore of the new rifles for use in that country.

Statistics carefully compiled show that within three years 5,000 people have lost their lives in western Pennsylvania because of weak dams.

A shad 26 inches long, 3½ inches thick and weighing 9 pounds 4½ ounces was caught in the Hudson river recently at Esopus, N. Y.

AN INSANE SQUAW.

She Murders Seven Children At The Duck Valley Reservation.

A dispatch to the San Francisco Examiner from Boise city, Idaho says;—Sandy McGuane, a trapper, who arrived Saturday from the Duck Valley Indian Reservation country, brings a story that is illustrative of Indian credulity and barbarism. Just above the northern boundary of the reservation there lived up to a month ago a squaw, aged about thirty years, who was known by stockmen and prospectors as Crazy Fish.

She had long been the companion of a French hunter named Baptiste and had seven children, the eldest of whom was thirteen years of age. Four of the seven were girls. Some of her offsprings were half-breeds, while others were full-blooded Piutes.

In May Baptiste ran across a gold pocket, and after he had panned out a quantity of dust quietly departed, leaving his dusky sweetheart behind.

Crazy Fish had always been more or less daft, but Baptiste's departure entirely unbalanced her mind. She declared that Baptiste had been murdered for his gold, and she bewailed his loss continually, often in the transports of her grief horribly mutilating herself.

Finally a fiendish Indian medicine man told her that Baptiste had died and would never return, but solemnly asserted, that his gold was contained in the stomach of one of her children.

Crazy Fish immediately murdered her offspring, one at a time, using a sharp steer's horn for a weapon.

After all had been killed the squaw, in a frenzy of dissapointment and rage, disembowled herself with the same murderous horn.

She lived only long enough to tell her story.

There are 896 convicts in the Kansas Penitentiary, only 19 of whom are females, showing that women possess only two per cent of the cussedness found in men.

The Polite Swimmer.

Directly the bathing season comes on a prominent feature of it appears in the person of the polite and gentlemanly swimmer who is of no earthly consequence on land, yet whose natatorial accomplishments render him, in his own eyes at least, absolutely bewitching in the water.

He is so polite, is this essentially summer production. His hand is always outstretched to guide into the briny the timid, shrinking bather of the feminine persuasion. So good is his heart he needs no introduction. He is above the mere petty trifles of mundane propriety, and in a spirit of genuine philanthropy comes to the rescue of the fair in a promiscuous manner delightful to behold. His attentions are extremely numerous, yet he does discriminate in a measure, as his gentle offices are usually performed for the prettier and younger novices at the shrine of Neptune.

Simply in a spirit of kindness and with a desire to overcome their excessive timidity he guides them far out where the water is deep and the waves are high, and then smiles rapturously when they cling to him in abject terror. He does not realize that they would embrace a rope or spar with the same fervor, but considers it a compliment to his own personality, which, in all probability, has made no impression whatever on the terrified female.

When not playing knight to beauty in distress he splashes, floats and swims for the edification of the people assembled on the beach and seems to consider himself the star attraction of the resort. He is indigenous to this season and this land. No other clime could produce so rare and perfect a specimen of officious masculine vanity as does our own delightful one.—Philadelphia Times.

Loomis Genealogy.

The late Professor Elias Loomis became interested in the subject of genealogy in early life, and for nearly forty years before his first publication he collected from time to time materials for a list of the descendants of his ancestor, Joseph Loomis, who came from Braintree, England, and settled in Windsor, Conn., in 1639. In 1870 he published a list containing 4,340 descendants of Joseph Loomis bearing the Loomis name. After five years of research he published the second edition of the "Loomis Genealogy," in which are given 8,686 names which bore the Loomis name, descendants of Joseph Loomis in the male branches.

Five years later, in 1880, he printed, in two additional volumes, a provisional list of 19,000 descendants of Joseph Loomis in the female branches. At the time of his death he left in manuscript many corrections and additions that will be of use to the future Loomis genealogist.—Newton's Memoria of Elias Loomis.

He Never Drinks Water.

Jack Irvin, of the Glover's Mill country, bears the distinction of being probably the only living man in the United States who has not swallowed a drop of water for thirty-six years. Mr. Irvin is now in his eighties, and for more than an average lifetime has rigorously abstained from the use of the liquor that fills but does not inebriate. Neither does he drink intoxicating liquors. At his meals Mr. Irvin drinks coffee or tea or milk, as the notion takes him. Between meals when Mr. Irvin feels his thirst growing he gets out his pipe and smokes it. While Mr. Irvin is in pretty fair health, his neighbors say that his looks would indicate that he is pretty well dried up.—Glasgow Times.

Canada's Biggest Man.

Leonard Whitton, of Brighton, brother of the cheese inspector, James Whitton, of Belleville, has continued to gain in flesh, and is now classed as the biggest man in Canada. He weighs 469 pounds. His measurement is as follows: Around the shoulders, 5 feet 6 inches; chest, 5 feet 2 inches; hips, 6 feet 2 inches; neck, 1 foot 11 inches, arm at shoulder, 1 foot 2 inches; arm below elbow, 1 foot 5 inches; thigh, 3 feet 9 inches; calf, 2 feet. His head measurement around the temples is 23 inches. Ten years ago he did not weigh more than 150 pounds. He is under forty years of age.—Brighton Ensign.

Few Accidents on English Railways.

The Englishman who, following Charles Francis Adams, declared that the safest place in which to spend an hour or two is an express train on one of the main railways, has had his idea confirmed by the fact that last year only five passengers were killed on all the railways of the United Kingdom, whereas in the streets of the metropolis alone 147 deaths and 5,784 personal injuries resulted from accidental circumstances connected with the vehicular traffic.—Boston Transcript.

California Wheat.

California wheat has a greater farm value than the wheat of any of the other states in the Union in which wheat growing is a leading industry. Last year the average price of California wheat on the farm exceeded that of Kansas wheat by more than 30 per cent. The reason why our wheat is worth so much more is because it costs so much less to get it to the foreign market. The state enjoys the advantage of deep water freight, but it should not be overlooked that a large portion of our grain crop is hauled distances of more than 300 miles from San Francisco.—San Francisco Post.

Women are not slow to comprehend They're quick. They're alive, and yet it was a man who discovered the one remedy for their peculiar ailments. The man was Dr. Pierce.

The discovery was his 'Favorite Prescription"—the boon to delicate women, Why go round "with one foot in the grave," suff-ring in silence—misunderstood—when there's a remedy at hand that isn't an experiment, but which is sold under the guarantee that if you are disappointed in any way in it, you can get your money back by applying to its makers.

We can hardly imagine a women's not trying it. Possibly it may be true of one or two—but we doubt it. Women are ripe for it. They have it. Think of a prescription and nine out of ten waiting for it. Carry the news to them!

The seat of sick headache is not in the brain. Regulate the stomach and you cure it. Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the little regulators.

"German Syrup"

For Coughs & Colds.

John F. Jones, Edom, Tex., writes: I have used German Syrup for the past six years, for Sore Throat, Cough, Colds, Pains in the Chest and Lungs, and let me say to anyone wanting such a medicine—German Syrup is the best.

B.W. Baldwin, Carnesville, Tenn., writes: I have used your German Syrup in my family, and find it the best medicine I ever tried for coughs and colds. I recommend it to everyone for these troubles.

R. Schmalhausen, Druggist, of Charleston, Ill., writes: After trying scores of prescriptions and preparations I had on my files and shelves, without relief for a very severe cold, which had settled on my lungs, I tried your German Syrup. It gave me immediate relief and a permanent cure.

A Wonderful Carpet.

There will be on view in the afternoons of the next few days what may probably without any exaggeration be called the finest Persian carpet in the world. This is the Holy Carpet of the Mosque of Ardebil in Persia—a carpet which for size, beauty, condition and authenticated age is entirely unrivaled by any known example.

The dimensions of the carpet are 34 feet 6 inches by 17 feet 6 inches. The ground of the body of the fabric is of a rich blue, covered with a floral tracery of exquisite delicacy and freedom of treatment. A center medallion of pale yellow terminates on its outer edge in sixteen minaret shaped points, from which spring sixteen cartouches—four green, four red and eight cream; and from two of these again are, as it were, suspended and hanging in the direction of the respective ends of the carpet, two of the sacred lamps of the mosque. But the most extraordinary detail of all is the pale cream cartouche placed within the border at the top end of the carpet, bearing its inwoven inscription, which is thus translated: "I have no refuge in the world other than thy threshold. My head has no protection other than thy porchway. The work of the slave of this Holy Place, Maksoud of Kashan, in the year 942."

Now 942 of the Hegira is 1535 of our era; so that the carpet was actually in existence, in the mosque of the sacred city of the Suffavian dynasty, at the time when Queen Elizabeth sent Anthony Jenkinson on an embassy to Shah Tamasp. It need not be said that carpets thus signed and dated are extremely rare, and are historically important as forming the points de repere for the students of oriental art.—London Times.

The Largest Aerolite.

What is believed to be the largest aerolite ever known to have fallen is lying in the Caspian sea, a short distance from the peninsula of Apsheron. The aerolite made a terrific noise as it rushed through the air with incredible speed, and the white hot mass made a light that illuminated the country and sea about for a great distance. Those who saw it were were struck dumb with consternation. When it struck the water immense clouds of steam arose, and the hissing could be heard for a great distance. Huge masses of water were thrown upward, and the sight to those who were not frightened was a most beautiful one.

So enormous is the aerolite that it projects twelve feet above the water, and save for its fused black crust, which gives it the appearance of having been varnished, it has every appearance of being one of the usual rocky formations met with along the coast. Scientists are deeply interested in the phenomenon, and a number of them are making preparations to visit the peninsula to examine the aerolite.—Cable Letter.

Decorating Snowdon.

A correspondent, who apparently is an enthusiastic Londoner, keenly alive to the possibility of improving our metropolitan monuments, and is at present on a tour in North Wales, writes that not only has a great flagstaff been erected on the highest peak of Snowdon, but a flag of extraordinary size has been hoisted upon it. He was present at the inauguration, and thinks that its folds floating in the wind "add considerable to the majesty of the unrivaled scenery."

An American traveler in Egypt once remarked that the pyramids were very good in their way, but would show off the desert better if they had a coat of paint. Snowdon has been decorated at much less trouble and expense, and may now be congratulated on having an important omission in its original design thus satisfactorily rectified. The "Standard on the Braes o' Mar" may henceforward hide its diminished head.—London Telegraph.

The Mice Pest in Scotland.

The report comes from Scotland that the hill grazings and rough pastures of six whole counties are overrun by mice—rats of a smaller growth. In two counties alone they have virtually taken possession of 90,000 acres, and it has been proposed that the affected ground be burned, lest the vermin move upon the planted fields and destroy the seed corn. Suppose in their migrations they have contracted some contagious disease, such as diphtheria or tuberculosis, what is to prevent the spread of these plagues among the now healthy peasantry of Dumfries, Roxburgh, Kirkcudbright, Peebles, Selkirk and Lanark?—Dr. S. E. Weber's Lecture.

A Dog's False Teeth.

A faithful old house dog owned by Melchoir Brown, of Reading, is more than a dozen years old. He lost all his teeth a long time ago and had great trouble in eating. Mr. Brown recently took the dog to a well known local dentist and had a full set of false teeth made for the animal, which he now uses with as much skill as any person could. At first it required considerable watching to prevent the dog from swallowing his grinders, but he soon grew accustomed to them. His master is now trying to teach him to take them out and wash them with his tongue.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Death from a Horsefly's Bite.

The sad death of Mr. F. J. Woods, Mr. Balfour's private secretary, from erysipelas supervening on the bite of a gadfly, is announced. The bite of gadflies is not usually considered poisonous, and it is supposed that the one who attacked Mr. Woods had been on a diseased animal. The most common species is Tabanus bovinus, and they are very troublesome to horses and cattle in the fields, especially in warm weather. —Pall Mall Gazette.

A Seasonable Discussion.

First Boarder—I wonder what makes this strawberry shortcake so heavy.

Second Boarder—Don't know, but it isn't the weight of the strawberries on top, anyhow.—New York Weekly.
